MISSION STATEMENT

We invite you to take part in a cultural protest.

Next Saturday, 12th of September 2015 at 7pm GMT, we will stage a screening of a secret film in an undisclosed Central London location. Standing in solidarity with the tragic plight of refugees in the biggest crisis since the Second World War.

We will send a powerful message to those that need to listen and ask you to join us in large numbers. We will build the screening in the heart of London.

Simultaneously to the London screening, we will stage a satellite screening in a European refugee camp. This night will be the first of many screenings; as with your help, we will build temporary cinemas for everyone, to run for the length of the crisis.

It is time to move. It is time to act.

SCREENING SET UP

Film: Neither the film nor the location for the London event will be disclosed. We are screening Bahman Ghobadi's Turtles Can Fly (please keep this confidential).

The DVD can be obtained from:

To obtain the screening rights please contact: BAC Films (UK distributor) on +33 180 491 000 or email contact@bacfilms.fr.

Location: Choose a location, no matter how big or small. Living rooms, cafés, sport halls, garages can be turned into screening rooms. If you do not have a screen, a clean, white wall will be perfect to project upon. Projectors are readily available for hire, however it is worth contacting local organisations to see whether they have equipment you could borrow.

Ticketing: If you are looking to ticket your event to recuperate your any hire costs (we recommend to keep them to a minimum), you will find online services to host your event and promote it, eg. eventbrite.com or uk.brownpapertickets.com. These also offer the option of a donation ticket, whereby the attendee chooses to donate as much as they can to attend the event.

Dress Code: All must wear blue. If you host a screening outdoors, guests are invited to bring a tent.

Additional: Artists and musicians are invited to join the screenings. Speakers on the night are welcome and we encourage all hosts to invite their local MP to the screening.

Promotion: The hashtags used for the event are #SecretProtest and #LoveRefugees and once you have registered your screening with us, we will list the details on the main event page.

Photography/Videography: We would be grateful if you could share them with secretprotest@secretcinema.org for a global photo album.

Posters: You will be able to download the Photoshop file and/or JPG images to create your own poster here:
